I didn't change my models too much as I already tried to make them as robust as possible in previous tasks, especially my recipe model which already contains attributes for name, ingredients, author, description, directions, picture, cuisine, and difficulty. I did however add a last name attribute to my author model to help organize them better.